

If you want low-cost, core deposits and a lucrative commercial portfolio, use ZEscrow.

Offer your clients a specialized service.

Winning over new commercial banking clients becomes easier when you offer tools that can simplify complex business and regulatory workflows. But phone calls, fax machines, and “master” Excel spreadsheets are the tools of many treasury and cash management bankers, or their commercial client counterparts. And they’re painfully outdated. In fact, some financial institutions are turning away valuable commercial clients because they’re unable to provide quality escrow and subaccounting service with these tools. But you don’t have to be one of those financial institutions if you’re using ZEscrow.

Differentiate

Your institution can offer the escrow and subaccounting tools that businesses need.

Bring in new commercial relationships that represent sticky, low-cost core deposits and loans.

Attract

Reduce

Use technology to shoulder the compliance burden for your staff and your clients.

Take the efficiency of your commercial banking team to the next level.

“What’s great about [ZEscrow] is that they’ve looked at all the realm as far as the legal aspect, because obviously when we’re dealing with municipalities, government agencies, and also attorney accounts we need to make sure we’re doing things properly. They’ve really addressed all the pain points in developing the product... there’s nothing out there that can truly take away all the manual process like this can.”
